Dear Employer:

Thank you for your interest in the State Work Study program. This handbook is designed to help you understand the basic requirements for the program and outline your responsibilities as an employer.

Since 1974, our State Work Study program has helped low- and middle-income students earn money for school and gain experience in areas related to their degrees or career interests. To encourage employers to participate, the state generally reimburses up to 65 percent of a student's wages. Everyone wins. Employers receive low cost part-time help, students earn money for school and receive valuable work experience, and the state is able to help more students go to college.

Today, more than 2,200 employers and 9,500 students in Washington participate in this nationally recognized program. On behalf of the Higher Education Coordinating Board and the citizens of Washington state, I would like to thank you for making this opportunity available to our students.

Sincerely,

James E. Sulton, Jr., Ph.D.
Executive Director

This handbook is not a legal interpretation of the State Work Study statute, rules, or regulations. Complete rules and guidelines are available from the Higher Education Coordinating Board Financial Aid Office at 360-753-7800.

The Washington State Legislature funds the State Work Study program every biennium as part of the higher education budget. The Higher Education Coordinating Board administers the State Work study program and works with eligible colleges to distribute funds to students, as part of their financial aid awards.

A SHORT CHECKLIST FOR EMPLOYERS

- ✓ Determine your need. Clearly define the type of work you need performed. Draft a job description with minimum requirements needed to perform the job. Is the work appropriate for a part-time, entry-level employee?
- ✓ Contact your local college or university. Participating schools are listed on pages 22 and 23 of this manual. Also in the manual are an employer contract, an employer profile, a job description form and a sample spreadsheet for tracking students' wages. These forms are also available on the Higher Education Coordinating Board Web site at www.hecb.wa.gov/financialaid/SWS/SWSindex.asp.

During the time you participate in the program you will need to complete only one contract and one employer profile form. However, you will need to complete a job description form each time you want to fill a position.
- ✓ Return the forms to the school. If you want to advertise at more than one school, you will need to submit a complete job description form to each school. Independent schools review employer contracts and employer profiles and forward them to the Higher Education Coordinating Board for approval. Public schools review and approve both forms.

You can expect approval to advertise a position within two weeks of submitting the forms to the school. The schools will notify you if your contract is approved and will post your job descriptions. It is a good idea to call the school to ensure that all paperwork has been approved and the job description has been posted.
- ✓ Confirm that the contract has been approved. You will receive your completed copy of the contract by mail.
- ✓ Interview students referred by the school. Before hiring students, ask for written verification of eligibility for the State Work Study program, such as a Financial Aid Award Letter or a referral letter from the school. A Financial Aid Award Letter or referral letter is an official letter, signed by a school officer, that lists the State Work Study award amount and the time period in which the student must earn the money.
- ✓ Hire a student. Follow all of your company's standard personnel procedures and notify the student's school immediately upon hiring. You also must notify the school at the time of termination. Train and orient your new student employee as you would any other employee.
- ✓ Maintain accurate records. A sample student earnings worksheet that can be used to track wages is on page 10.
- ✓ Pay the student. You may pay by either check or direct deposit for the gross hourly wages earned minus any deductions. Ask the student to certify receipt of wages by signing the time sheet. Verify that the hours were worked and the student's performance was satisfactory by signing the time sheet yourself.
- ✓ Claim reimbursement. Send the time sheet to the student's school. You will receive a reimbursement check within three to six weeks.

EMPLOYER ELIGIBILITY

DETERMINING ELIGIBILITY

Is my business or organization eligible?

Eligible employers include government agencies, for-profit corporations, small businesses, and non-profit organizations. However, the state constitution prevents any business or organization involved in or with a controlling interest in political or religious activity from participating in the program.

In selecting employer participants, schools will review:

- The nature of the position;
- The organization's compatibility with the school's role and mission; and
- The work environment to ensure that it promotes a positive learning experience.

In addition, schools will want assurances that the position:

- Will not displace regular workers or impair existing contracts;
- Will give students the opportunity to explore or gain experience in a career interest; and,
- Will be adequately supervised.

ASSESSING COSTS

What will it cost?

Wages

You will be required to pay the student a wage equal to what you pay non-students for similar work. The state then will generally reimburse 65 percent of the student's gross wages. See page 7 for more details on setting wage rates.

Benefits

You will pay the employer share of any required employee benefits, such as Federal Withholding Tax, Workers' Compensation, Federal Social Security Taxes, and State and Federal unemployment taxes. You may offer optional employer-sponsored benefits, although it is not required. You will not be reimbursed for these optional benefits.

Students who work in public schools or government agencies may be eligible for retirement benefits. Contact the Washington State Department of Retirement Systems' Employer Support Services for more information.

Why is the cost so low?

As a participating employer, you're not the only one who benefits. The state and students win too. Through the program, the state helps students who might not be able to afford an education pay a portion of their college costs.

Money earned through the Work Study Program allows students to pay for their education in current dollars, limiting their need to incur more debt. Because the employer pays a portion of student wages, the state's financial aid funds can be distributed more widely, making higher education available to more Washington citizens.

In addition, national studies suggest that students who work up to half-time while in college manage their time better, are less likely to drop out, and place a higher value on their education.

THE HIRING PROCESS

RECRUITING

How do I recruit students?

Recruiting good employees is a major issue in today's labor market. This program allows you to try out potential employees before graduation and train them the way you would like. You can assess their performance on a low-cost basis, then offer employment upon graduation if they fit into your organization.

TIPS FOR WORKING WITH SCHOOLS

Determine what schools you would like to work with in your area. A complete list of eligible schools is on pages 22 and 23. Call the student employment administrator at each school to set up a visit. Each school operates the program a little differently.

Questions to Ask

- Ask how your jobs will be advertised. Consider placing an ad in the school newspaper.
- Ask about internships. Internships can often be combined with Work Study awards to allow the student to be paid for the work.
- Ask the school about its policy for summer Work Study. Not all schools give students a Work Study award during summer vacation.
- Ask for a calendar of school breaks and vacations. Dates of academic terms vary depending on the college or university.
- Ask about upcoming job fairs. Some campuses regularly hold job fairs for employers interested in hiring student workers. Participating in these or setting up recruiting times on campus may save you time in finding the right student.

When is the best time to recruit students and where can I find them?

In general, the best time to recruit students is in the fall when most students begin a new school year and look for part-time jobs. In the summer, many students look for full-time work to earn money for school.

DETERMINING A STUDENT'S ELIGIBILITY

Can I hire any student?

To qualify for reimbursement, you must hire a college student who is eligible for State Work Study and has been referred to you by one of the participating schools.

How do I know if a student is eligible?

Most students will identify themselves as eligible when they call or visit you to inquire about a job. Ask them to bring to the interview a copy of their financial aid eligibility forms. While these forms vary from school to school, most will include the following:

- A statement that the student is eligible for Work Study;
- The total amount the student can earn is called the "award amount" and,
- The eligibility dates.

Some forms provide a place for you to verify that you have hired the student. If so, sign the form and return it to the school. Other forms are informational only. Award amounts and eligibility dates should be clearly stated. If they are not, call the school. Make sure you keep a copy for your new employee's personnel file.

INTERVIEWING

How many candidates can I interview before I select one?

You should interview as many as you think necessary. Due to the program's popularity and limited funding, there are many more jobs than students to fill them each year.

Do I have to hire any student referred to me?

No. Select a student worker as you would any other worker. Outline the job requirements, conduct interviews, and hire the best person.

Do I have to hire this student when he or she graduates?

No, you are under no obligation to offer permanent employment to a student employee. However, many employers view this program as a good tool for identifying and hiring permanent workers.

Once I've hired a Work Study Student employee, what can I expect?

You should expect the same performance and results you would expect from any other part-time worker.

What may be different about student workers?

Every student is required to make satisfactory academic progress in school while holding a Work Study position. If a student's grades fall, he or she may be required to stop work. Therefore, the student's work schedule should be flexible enough to accommodate study and exam times.

HIRING

What is the "typical" student like?

The student population has become increasingly diverse. It includes traditional students, ages 18 to 21, who are eager to excel in their first work experiences, and older students seeking to make mid-career changes or add cutting-edge skills to their already considerable work experience.

What kind of time commitment can I expect from a student worker?

Most students can work two to four hours a day during the school year. Some students also will be available to work full-time during school breaks and summer.

Students can earn varying amounts based on their financial need, as determined by the school. If their eligibility award is low, the time commitment they can offer you may be limited.

No. Many students need additional financial help to get through school. This is not a reflection on their ability to do a good job for you. As college costs continue to rise, more and more students need help. These students are as skilled and academically capable as students who don't need assistance.

TIPS FOR INTERVIEWING

- Prepare an accurate description of job duties to attract the most appropriate candidates.
- Explain your expectations for the position during the initial interview so the student can assess his or her ability and interest in performing the work.
- Provide the student with information on what skills will be acquired while working in the job.
- Explain any special work requirements, such as safety issues in a hazardous work environment or legal issues in working with children.
- Outline causes for termination.
- Outline personnel rules and procedures, such as setting work hours or calling in sick.
- Show the student where the work will be performed and introduce the student to the key people with whom he or she will be working.

PAY AND PERFORMANCE

SETTING STUDENT WAGES

Students must be paid on an hourly basis at a rate that is comparable to the entry-level rate for regular employees performing similar duties within your organization.

If I have no other workers who are performing this kind of work, how do I determine a fair wage?

The pay rate should be appropriate within the context of your pay schedule. Consider major duties and responsibilities, level of tasks and duties, distinguishing characteristics, typical work, judgment required, and the skills and knowledge required to do the job. The contracting school can assist you in setting the wage if you have difficulty determining the appropriate level.

Public colleges and universities that employ students on campus are required to follow specific guidelines in establishing wage rates. Contact the Higher Education Coordinating Board for more information.

Can I pay student workers on a commission basis?

No. The terms of the contract require you to set an hourly wage for the duties performed. If your organization pays workers by commission, bonus, or other special compensation, in addition to an hourly wage, you will be reimbursed for only the agreed upon percentage of the hourly wage.

Can I pay a student in cash?

No. The rules of the program require that you pay by check or direct deposit and keep accurate records for proof of payment.

Can I offer room or board or other goods or services in exchange for hours worked?

No. The student must be paid an hourly wage for hours worked.

ENSURING PERFORMANCE

What if a student is not performing satisfactorily?

Point out the problem and take corrective measures right away. To prevent performance problems, clearly outline your expectations. If you have an ongoing need for student employees, consider writing Work Study procedures into your standard personnel procedures manual.

Each time you sign the time sheet to verify hours worked, you also are verifying that the work was performed satisfactorily.

Can I fire a Work Study Student employee for performance problems?

Yes. However, if possible, first offer the student a chance to correct the problem.

You may want to apply your normal performance-review procedures to student employees, or modify your standards by reviewing performance more often. A review every three to six months seems to work best.

If you do fire a student employee, inform the student's school of the reason, preferably in writing. This will help the school counsel the student for future positions.

Can a Work Study Student employee be laid-off?

Yes, if necessary. However the student may take another job and not be available later.

CONTRACT AND REIMBURSEMENT

SIGNING THE EMPLOYER CONTRACT

How do I sign up for the program?

Call the schools in your area and tell them you would like to participate. They will either send you an employer contract and an employer profile form or direct you to the Higher Education Coordinating Board's Web site to download the forms. Write a job description for each position and send the completed forms back to the school.

How long does the contractual period run?

The contract year runs from July 1 until June 30. Renewal is required each year. If you want to hire a student for the summer only, beginning before July 1, you will need to sign a contract for the current year ending June 30.

Do all the colleges and universities in the state follow the same procedures?

In general, they follow the same procedures, although some differences exist.

Public schools directly handle contracts and reimbursement checks. Due to state constitutional requirements, the Higher Education Coordinating Board issues checks and approves contracts for independent colleges and universities.

Each school will have a set of operating procedures and guidelines. Some rules may be unique to each school. If you have questions, call that school to verify its requirements.

Who signs the contract in my organization?

The individual who is authorized to approve expenditures should sign the contract. The authorizing signature indicates compliance with all provisions of the contract.

What are my responsibilities once the student employee starts work?

As an employer, you are responsible for the following:

- Providing adequate and reasonable supervision for the student employee;
- Ensuring that the student employee does not work more than an average of 19 hours per week while in school and no more than 40 hours during breaks;
- Ensuring that total earnings do not exceed the amount for which the student is eligible, that the student does not start work before the start date listed on the award letter, and does not work beyond the end date. If you are uncertain about those dates, contact the student's school for assistance;
- Notifying the school of any changes in the student's employment, such as changes in wage rate or job title, promotion, termination or your name, federal id and/or address;
- Attesting that wages were paid to the student by signing the time sheet; and,
- Following all state and federal employee laws.

MONITORING STUDENT EARNINGS

What is the best way to monitor student earnings?

The best way to ensure that you will be reimbursed is to monitor student earnings. Keep track of the total eligibility amount and the gross amount earned, not just the employer share. Encourage the student to keep records too.

When the student has earned most of the award amount, the student can check with the school to determine eligibility for an additional award. If the student is not eligible for additional State Work Study funds, the student must stop work. Of course, you may elect to pay the entire wage, although you will not be reimbursed for amounts in excess of the award.

COMPLETING TIME SHEETS

Where do I get time sheets and how do I complete and submit them?

The school will provide time sheets.

A sample time sheet used by independent colleges, with instructions for completing it, is available in the appendix on page 19. Public schools may have a slightly different time sheet. If you are uncertain which time sheet to use, call the school directly for assistance.

The time sheet is a record of hours worked and wages paid, and allows you to receive reimbursement. The time sheet must be signed in ink and dated on or after the last day worked, by the student and by the person directly responsible for supervising the student's work. Instructions for completing the recommended time sheet are included on page 20.

If students work beyond their eligibility, you will not be reimbursed for hours over the amount indicated in the award letter. In addition, the student's financial aid may be revised downward to compensate for the additional money earned.

GETTING REIMBURSED

The contract outlines employer responsibilities and the rules for claiming reimbursement. It's a good idea to ask everyone involved in the Work Study program – from the student's supervisor to the payroll specialist – to review the contract.

Follow the school's instructions for submitting the time sheets and keep a copy for your records. You must submit the time sheets within 15 days following the end of your payroll period.

If the Higher Education Coordinating Board will be reimbursing you, it is especially important that you submit all time sheets for June hours on or before July 10. The state can make reimbursements only for hours worked during that fiscal year. Please note that June and July hours must be submitted on separate time sheets.

To avoid delays, please make sure that time sheets are error-free.

How long does it take to receive my reimbursement check?

In general, you should receive your reimbursement check within three to six weeks after submitting time sheets to the student's school. At the end of the state's fiscal year, however, it may take up to six weeks. If you have a question or concern, contact the student's school.

Whom should I contact with questions about time sheets, contracts or job descriptions?

Contact the school first. If you still have questions, then contact the Higher Education Coordinating Board at (360) 753-7800. When calling or writing us, please have the following available:

- Your IRS Federal Identification Number;
- The student's name; and,
- The name of the student's school.

STEP 2

$$\frac{\text{Total hours in award term}}{\text{Number of weeks in award term}} = \text{Average number of hours per week that student can work}$$

GLOSSARY

Award Amount: A State Work Study award is the amount of money a student can earn to help pay for school. The award amount is the total amount the student can earn, not just the employer's share.

Award Letter: A letter or form from the student's school that indicates that a student is eligible for State Work Study. The letter should clearly state the award amount and the starting and ending dates of the award.

Comparable Wages: An hourly rate of pay equal to the entry-level rate of non-student employees performing similar duties within the employing organization. Factors for determining comparability include major duties and responsibilities, distinguishing characteristics, judgment required, and skills and knowledge required to do the job. The nature of the work will determine appropriate pay rate, not student status or minimum qualifications.

Displacement of Regular Employees: In general, State Work Study student employees may not fill positions that have been filled by regular employees during the current or prior calendar or fiscal year.

Eligible Employer: An employer that meets all of the conditions for participation in the State Work Study Program.

Employer Contract: The contract between the employer and the Higher Education Coordinating Board for the State Work Study Program.

Employer ID Number: See "Federal Identification Number."

Employer Information Change Request Form: A form used by the employer to update the program about changes in the business information, job description, or student pay rate.

Federal Identification Number: A number assigned by the federal government that is used for tax identification. This number is the primary identification number for the State Work Study Program and must be included on all State Work Study time sheets submitted for reimbursement.

Federal Withholding Tax: An amount withheld from employee wages each pay period, according to the number of allowances claimed by the employee on the W-4 form. Only employees who did not have to pay income tax last year and who do not expect to pay tax this year may claim an exemption. If this is the case, the W-4 form must be completed annually, by February 15th of each year.

FICA (Federal Insurance Contribution Act): Social Security taxes levied against the employer and the employee. The employer must withhold and pay the employee's share of the tax. For more information, contact the U.S. Internal Revenue Service.

Financial Need: See "Need."

Higher Education Coordinating Board: The Washington state agency responsible for administering the rules and regulations of the State Work Study Program.

Hours, Maximum Allowable: During the academic year, students are allowed to work an average of 19 hours per week. This amount may be averaged over the course of the academic period with consent from the school. If the award is high enough, students may work up to 40 hours per week during the summer and over school breaks.

Industrial Insurance, Washington State: A tax, also called Workers' Compensation or Medical Aid, paid by the employer on behalf of workers to cover job-related injuries or illnesses. Contact the Washington State Department of Labor and Industries for more information.

Institution: The generic word used to describe all facilities of higher education, whether universities, colleges, vocational education institutions, or other campuses teaching post-secondary courses. In this handbook, the words "college" and "school" are used interchangeably.

Institution, Independent: An independently-funded, non-profit college or university accredited by the Northwest Association of Schools and College.

Institution, Public: A publicly funded college, university, or technical school.

Job Description Form: A form on which the employer describes the duties of the job, the educational benefits derived from performing the work, the minimum qualifications required to perform the job, and the pay rate.

Job Fair: An event sponsored by a campus to bring together employers and students looking for positions.

Monitoring the Award: Keeping track of the total amount a student may earn to ensure the limit is not exceeded. Generally, the award is the gross amount the student may earn. An employer needs to monitor the total amount earned, not the employer's share.

Need: The amount of financial aid a student must have in order to pay college costs. A standard formula is applied to a student's specific circumstances. The school determines the amount of the student's financial need.

Package/Financial Aid Package: A mix of grants, loans, state and federal Work Study, scholarships and other aid awarded by the school to meet the student's need for funds to pay college costs. See "Award Amount."

Pay Rate: An hourly wage, appropriate within the organization's own scheme, for work performed. See "Comparable Wages."

Reimbursement: The funds paid to an employer for the state's share of the wages the employer has already paid to the State Work Study student employee.

State Wide Vendor Number: A number assigned by the Office of Financial Management when an organization submits an application for Electronic Funds Transfer.

Supervision: The act of overseeing the daily work of a State Work Study student employee in a reasonable manner to ensure that the duties of the position are performed safely and the student gains educational benefits from the work.

Unemployment Insurance, Washington State: An employer-paid benefit, which may or may not apply to State Work Study employees. For more information, contact the Washington State Department of Employment Security.

Uniform Business Identifier: A number assigned by the Department of Licensing when an organization submits an application for a Master Business License.
